Sustainability

Coral planting (subject to permit and approvals)

Located on a picturesque island in the South Male atoll in the Indian Ocean, Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives owes much of its beauty and popularity to its natural surroundings; from the thriving coral reef that borders the resort to the warm ocean waters that is home to a myriad of marine life. Sustainability and preserving the environment is at the core of the resort inhabitants way of life.

To minimise the impact of tourism on the environment and additionally improve it, the management and crew members at the Resort have implemented several mechanisms from banning single use plastics to effective waste management protocols and introduced a focus on regeneration which has been applauded by local Maldivians and visitors alike.

Education continues to be an important part of the resort's efforts; drawing the attention of visitors through sharing initiatives, achievements and measurement metrics on guest room televisions. These measures are something that is top of mind for the crew members who revisit everything from organic and inorganic waste to fuel and energy consumption daily.

Collaboration with Parley for the Ocean

In April 2023, the Resort inked an agreement with Parley for the Ocean to support the Tourism Industry of the Maldives' goal to implement the Parley AIR Strategy aiming to put the spotlight on the major threats facing the ocean. The Resort has committed to intercept plastic waste on the island, collaborate on transporting plastics from nearby islands using resort boats, and to participate in uninhabited island clean-ups. The Resort is actively exploring further 'avoid' measures around the use of plastic in operations, actively encouraging visitors to Kandooma to emotionally connect with the ocean to ensure its protection for future generations, empowering each crew member to be a champion of the oceans, and to actively embrace relationships with nearby communities and schools to foster appreciation for the ocean.

Wave Energy

Wave Energy

Located on the doorstep of Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives is “Kandooma Right” – one of Maldives' premier surf breaks which has become the site of the world's first pilot project to harness electricity from surf waves. Launched in mid-2018, the Wave Energy project is a collaboration between the Ministry of Environment (Maldives), The Okinawa Institute of Science & Technology Graduate University (OIST) and Kokyo Tatemono Company Limited (Kokyo), both based in Japan. The preliminary phase of this project is expected to generate 1 megawatt of electricity from the Wave Energy Converter Units, which amounts to 30% - 40% of the diesel used to power generators. This sustainable energy will help the resort reduce carbon emissions. If the pilot study is successful it is the intention that the technology will be developed further and shared across other islands and hospitality providers to encourage the use of sustainable and clean energy. This is of heightened importance in the Maldives as the archipelago is highly susceptible to the effects of climate change. Due to the Covid-19 Pandemic the first phase has been extended.

Plastic Free

Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives has undertaken several steps to reduce single-use plastics throughout the resort. Perhaps the single-most effective action has been replacing plastic water bottles, straws and cups with glassware. It is estimated that this single action has saved a minimum of 1.2 million plastic bottles per year. Like all environmental efforts, no single action stands alone, however this action moving away from plastic bottled water to glassware in villas, the food and beverage outlets and even boat transfers has been a positive contributor to reducing our carbon footprint. The Resort is in the process of working towards the full elimination of single-use plastics.

Community Engagement

Community Engagement

As part of our Community Engagement, we have initiated and implemented several programs throughout the year from providing long term assistance to the Home for People with Special Needs on Guraidhoo island to a tree planting program that occurs twice a year. Additionally, we partner with vocational institutes to enlighten students interested in the tourism industry and provide insight into our resort's operations. Our colleagues also organise and participate in medical camps and blood donations to aid the local communities.

Waste, Water & Electricity Management

Waste, Water & Electricity Management

Separate bins and waste management processes were set up to effectively recycle food waste, plastics, tin, metal and other general waste. From harvesting rainwater (saving an estimated 50,000 tonnes of water per month in the laundry alone) to recycling excess water from the A/C for use in various areas from gardening to 'foot baths', the aim is always how to most effectively use resources. It is estimated that the resort saves 18 cubic litres of fresh water each day by using treated grey water for gardening and flushing.

The resort's on-site Desalination Water Plant produces an average of 15,500 litres of drinking water each month.

Additionally, the resort has curbed electricity consumption by using garden and path timers as well as switching to LED bulbs and inverter air conditioners, which combined helped reduce 60% of the total electricity consumption without negatively impacting the guest stay or the quality of service.

Heat created by the resort generators is recycled to steam water in generator coil exhaust pipes. The heat is used to warm water in 22 staff rooms and in the desalination plan.

Regenerative Garden Areas

Regenerative Garden Areas

Since opening Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives, the property has employed teams of people just to sweep and rake pathways. With island winds, it is sometimes a thankless and never-ending task. However in 2022 the resort embarked on a new initiative taking some inspiration from hotels in Australia to create regenerative areas within the island grounds. The management identified specific areas which would lend themselves to a more rustic style where leaves and garden waste can be used and allowed to naturally compost, thereby creating a habitat for small animals, insects, reptiles and birds, and the ideal conditions for natural plant re-seeding. By minimising our sweeping of the sand pathways we have significantly reduced labour costs, and removed heat created from the glare on the white sands.

Also in 2022 we commenced a new trial of Frond Circles. Simply this is an initiative, where fallen palm tree fronds are arranged in a circular shape - similar to a clock face - layer upon layer to a height of 150 cm. The intention is to monitor how long it takes for these palm fronds to decompose and then be able to utilise the compost product to enrich the gardens. If the study is successful Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives will further implement throughout the grounds and embark on a guest education programme.

Tech Driven Marketing

During the Covid-19 Pandemic spanning 2020 to mid 2022, Holiday Inn Resort Kandooma Maldives removed all paper and unnecessary items from guest rooms and public areas, replacing them with new technology such as QR Codes for the efficient touch-less provision of information. This practice is being embraced and continued to minimise paper waste. Supporting this direction in October 2022 the resort launched it's smart device App allowing guests to interact in real time with a staff member, have the resort information at their finger tips and be able to order room service, room amenities such as additional water or towels all from their phone.

Doing business responsibly is a core part of the InterContinental Hotels Group (IHG) culture, and that includes hotels and resorts bearing the Holiday Inn brand. In 2021 the Journey to Tomorrow 2030 plan was launched by the group to further strengthen the positive impact on people, communities and the planet.
